This icon set offers you a rich set of over 200 icons that can be used in software development for implementing various buttons. Which one should be used? A: If you are using it in an Android app, you can use the fjui-button-set-03. See the documentation. The set of Fjui Icons is divided into 2 groups: Fjui Icons for Forms, which are used for building input elements such as buttons, labels, and checkboxes. Fjui Icons for Buttons, which are used for displaying actions and for indicating which action is currently being performed. The files for the Fjui Icons for Forms group are named FjuiIcons for Forms - Default. The files for the Fjui Icons for Buttons group are named FjuiIcons for Buttons - Default. The FjuiButtonsSet03.zip file includes the latest version of Fjui Icons for Buttons set in 16x16, 32x32, 48x48, 64x64, 96x96 and 128x128 pixel resolution Regarding the documentation, you can look here and here. So you should just include it as in @Gredas answer. FIG. 6 shows a conventional LED lamp. This LED lamp 100 includes a base 1 and a housing 2. The housing 2 is comprised of a top cover 3 and a bottom cover 4. The base 1 includes a power connection terminal 11, a heat sink 12 and an LED module 13. The heat sink 12 is disposed on the base 1. The base 1 is placed on the housing 2, and then the top cover 3 and the bottom cover 4 are combined together. However, the aforesaid LED lamp 100 still has drawbacks. For example, a lot of components are used in the housing 2, so the cost is high. Further, a tube 5 is disposed on the LED module 13. A cooling pipe (not shown) is disposed on the tube 5, and then cool air is injected into the cooling pipe to remove heat. However, the cost is high, and the heat-dissipation effect is poor. In order to improve the heat-dissipation effect, a film-like heat pipe is provided on the heat sink 12 of the LED module 13. The heat pipe 20 includes a porous pipe body 21 and a working fluid 22. The working fluid 22 is
